FOSTER CARE

Special Guest...

These past few weeks we had special guest speakers at the foster home. What made the speakers so special to me was the fact that they both were part of my life before Christ transformed me. The first guest speaker was a childhood friend and was an extended part of our family. He served in the military college other guest Pastor, Leader and and he is Both past. At their life part of kingdom choices prison. The and now is a professor. The speaker is a Community Entrepreneur also my dad. speakers had a one point in they were a another and their landed them in young people were engaged with excitement in their eyes as the men shared their journey to Christ and their careers. The first step to change is seeing life from a new perspective. As the young people are filled with hope, eventually their heart and mind will follow.

Finally, I had the privilege to eat with the foster boys, which is one of my favorite moments because I can see their true personalities outside of the hard shell some of them may portray. When you remove some of their layers, you'll see they are kids at heart filled with so much love and potential. As my grandparents used to say, "the way to a person's heart is through their stomach."
